Writing Comes To Life
October 30, 2009
Jo Ella Exley Elementary

On Friday, October 30th, students and staff may choose to participate in a dress up writing activity. They can dress as a character (human or otherwise) they admire and write a brief essay in the space provided below that describes what they have in common with their character and what characteristics they admire most about the character they chose. Students may NOT wear any costumes that are inappropriate for a school environment. Scary, bloody, or gory costumes such as witches, goblins, etc. will not be permitted. No weapons such as swords or guns are permitted. Please help your child to choose a wholesome costume if they choose to participate. Students must bring their writing piece with them to share with their teacher.

Describe what you and the character you chose have in common.

Explain what traits you like most about the character you chose.
